TO THE MOST high, and mightie Prince, ELIZABETH, By the grace of God, of England, Fraunce, and Ireland, Queene: Defender of the faith, &c.

Icero did account it worthie his labor, and no les profitable to the Roman common weale (Most gratious Soueraigne,) to inuent a speedie kinde of wryting by Character, as Plu- tarch reporteth in the life of Cato the yonger. This inuention was increased afterwardby Seneca: that the number of Characters grue to 7000. Whether through iniurie of time, or that men gaue it ouer for tediousnes of learning, nothing remaineth extant of Ciceros inuention at this day. Vpon consideration of the great vse of such a kinde of writing, I haue inuented the like: of fewe Characters, short, & easie, euery Character answering

ring a word: My inuenti-on meere Engliſh, without precept, or imitation of any. The vſes are diuers:
Short, that a ſwifte hande
may therewith write Orations, or publike actions of ſpeach, vttered as becommeth the grauitie of ſuch actions, verbatim. Se- crete, as no kinde of wryting like. And herein (be-ſides other properties) excelling the writing by letters, and Alphabet, in that,
Nations of ſtrange langua ges, may herby commuuicate their meaning together in writing, though of sundrie tonges. It is reported of the people of China, that they haue no other kinde, and so traffike together many Prouinces of that kingdom, ignorant one of an others speach. Their Characters are very long, and harde to make, that a douzen of mine, may be written as soone as one of theirs: Besides, they wanting an Alphabet, fal into an infinite number, which is a thing that

that greatlie chargeth memory, and may discourage the learner.

This my inuention I am emboldned to dedicate vnto your Maiesty, in that among other your Princelie vertues, your Maiesty is woont to approue of euerie good and profitable inuention of learning: and in duetie of thankefulnesse am I much more bounde thereunto, from whome I haue receiued assurance of the fruite of my studies, by your Maiesties most gracious Priuiledge. And this my inuention being altogether of English yeeld, where your Maiestie is the Ladie of the Soyle it appertayneth of right to you onely. So, mooued by duetie, and incouraged by your Maiesties fauourable disposition to the vertuous, & learned indeuors of your faithfull Subiects, I haue presumed to publish my Charactery vnder the protection of your Maiesties name. It is like a tender plant, yong & strange,

and so it resteth.

If it may be so happy, as to inioye the influence of your Maiesties fauoure, and good liking, I doubt not, but it will growe vp, be embraced, & yeeld profitable fruit vnto many, and I my selfe thereby shal haue atteined for my particular respect, that which in a lower degree, many shal enioy by the vse of this my inuentiõ, which I hope (be it said with modestie) wanteth little to equall it, with that olde deuise of Ciceroes, but your Ma ieſties alowance, & Cice-roes name. The later as I can eaſily ſpare, ſo without the former my Characterie dareth preſume no farther, but liueth, or dieth, according to your Maieſties account, whoſe bleſſed ſtate, as it is to all your loyall ſubiectes an other life, beſides the naturall, ſo to this new ſprong ympe, & to me the parent therof, nothing can bee more comfortable then your Maieſties gratious acceptation, by whom all

all the land floriſheth, & is at the very heart cheered.

The eternall bleſſe your Maieſtie with increaſe of all happineſſe to your comfort, and your faithfull ſubiects, that (vnder the great maieſtie of God) onely depend vpon you.

Your Maieſties faithful
Subiect

Timothie Bright.

Ingenio, arte, manu.

An instruction to the Reader, how the art is to be learned.

THou hast here gentle Reader, an Art of short, and so of speedie wryting, plainely deliuered vnto thee. So as by thine owne industry, thou mayest attaine vnto it, if thou wilt but one moneth take paines therein, & by continuance of an other moneth, mayest thou attaine to great readinesse. For thy better instructió, thou art first to learne the Characterie wordes by heart, and therewith the making of the figure of the Character, to doo it readily, and cleane. Then, to be able to ioyne euery Character to the worde worde pronounced, without booke or ſight of any patterne before thee. This done, thou art farther to proceede, and to learne how to referre eyther wordes of like ſignification, or of the ſame kinde, or contraries vnto thoſe that be called Characterie. Here becauſe euery man by his owne reache can not conſider how to refer all wordes, thou haſt in this booke an Engliſh dictionary, with words of referẽce already thereto adioyned, to helpe ſuch as of thẽſelues can not ſo diſpoſe thẽ. The words which are called appellatiue, if they ſignifie thinges that haue diſtinct parts: thoſe parts are to be written on the one ſide, and the things and all the ſortes of that kinde, on the other, and where where there be many of a kind for cleerer distinction, part thé vnto diuerse sides. Likewise, as thou maiest see in the table of thé more particularly. In stead of much laborious writing; for thy speedy exercise, and ease, thou mayest cause one to read the Dictionarie to thee, while thou writest it, and so in that small quantitie of paper hast thou to exercise thee more, thé if thou shouldest write whole volumes. And if thou wilt take paines to cast the Characterie wordes into some discourse, as liketh thee best, so hast thou a meanes of reteyning the Art, and keeping it without al danger of forgetting.

Moreouer, thou mayest exercise this art after a while learning, as well by reading without writing as if thou diddeſt write, by calling the Character to thy minde, and the worde of reference. So haſt thou the Art of ſhort, ſwift, and ſecrete writing, none comparable.

Farewell.

THE ARTE OF Characterie.

Haracterie is an arte of writing briefelie. It hath two parts. The firſt parte is concerning the making of the Characters.

The ſeconde is concerning the value, and ſignification of them.

A Character is a brief mark of a worde.

To Characters doe belong two thinges: Figure, and Ioyning.

The Figure ought to be eaſie, and briefe.

The ioyning of Characters conſiſteth of ſituation, and diſtinction.

The

The ſituation of Character ought to be one directly vnder the other.

The diſtinction ought to be made with a pricke ſette vnder the Character, at euery breathing, or pauſe of the ſentence as Theſe are properties belonging to all Characters.

THe kindes of Characters are two: Simple or compound.

A Simple one is a Character made of no other, and is varied by euery kinde of poſition, hanging, or lying.

It is either a ſtraight line, or crooked.

A ſtraight line hanging, direct, as, or bias as lying, thus, —

A crooked line, is either halfe circle or whole, hanging thus ,ↄ (lying thus ∩ ∪ The whole circle thus ○

The Compounded Characters are ſuch as be made of the ſimple.

A Compounde Character hath two partes: the one is the bodie of the Character, & the other is an addition to it.

The bodie of the Character is a ſingle ſtraight Character, & by it is varied the poſition of the Character compounded thereof.

The Addition is to either ſide of the bodie, to the head or to the foote.

The addition is either ſingle, or Compound.

Single, when the addition is of one line onely: and that eyther ther ſtreight, or croked.

Streight line to the head of either ſide, thus: to the foote, thus:

A crooked line to the head, thus: To the foote, thus:

A compounde addition is when the addition conſiſteth of two lines.

The Compound addition is of two ſorts; either of the ſame kinde of lines, as two crooked as , or one ſtreight and the other crooked, at the head thus , at the foote thus Hetherto of the parts of ſtreight lined characters, and the properties belonging to them.

Now of the kinds.

THe ſtreight lined Cõpound is multiplied by varying poſi-position, first – then / and \

A straightlined Character is either simply Compounded, or double Compound.

Simply Comp. at head thus: from b * answering the alphabet saving k, q, and y, which are answered with c, and i, position, at the feete thus: position.

Double Compounds are such, as haue additions boath at head and foote, as , and so the rest, the 12. feete added. Position thus

These are all the streight lined Characters.

Thus much concerning the Character, and of the first part of Characterie.

The

The ſeconde parte of Characterie, touching the ſignification of the Character.

THe ſignification of the character is of two ſorts. Solitarie, or accompanied.

A ſolitarie ſignification is that, which a ſolitarie Character expreſſeth.

That is, certaine wordes whereto all other may bee referred, called Characterícall.

The Characterícall wordes, are a number that haue neither agreement, nor contrariety together: but ſtand indifferently affected.

Theſe are all conteyned in a Table following, with the Cha-

Character adioyned to eache word.

Let a ſhort Character, ſerue an vſuall and ſhort word: and a long one a long word: excepte the order in the Alphabet diſpoſed for memorie, cauſe alteration.

A worde of the ſame ſound, though of diuers ſence, is written with the ſame: as, faſte, for abſtinence from meate, for ſwiftnes, and ſurenes: ſo if it much differ not, as whore, and hore, whole, and hole.

Of the properties belonging to words.

THe properties belonging to wordes, are ſhewed by plain expreſsing them: or are gathethered by nature of the ſpeech.

They

They are expreſſed by pricks added to the ſide of the Character.

They are common to all wordes, or peculiar vnto certayne.

The common is, to be primitiue, or deriued.

Of Primitiues, or Deriuatiues.

PRimitiues and Deriuatiues are known by the language: as, he is a vertuous man, not, a vertue man: feare God, honour the king: not fearful, ſo not honorable.

Deriued words that ende in er, require two prickes at the right ſide of the Character: as, laborer is deriued of labor.

Such as ende in ſhippe, as friendfriendſhip, or hood, as neighbourhood, require after the word writen, the Character of ſhip to be placed vnderneath: and whether it, or hood be to be read, the language wil plainly deliuer. For no man wil read either neighborſhip, or friendhood.

Let his be written with the Character of he, and a prick on the left ſide, as: h.

Thus much of Primitiues and Derivatiues: which are common to all wordes.

Now of peculiar properties.

THe peculiar to Nownes are Nomber, and Compariſon.

Of Nomber.

A, going before the word, declareth the ſingular nomber: as, a man, not, a men.

Whē the, goeth before, place a pricke at the side of the Character folowing, to note the plurall nomber. as ꝺ. the ages.

The Character of this, requireth a pricke on the side, to signifie these. ꝺ.

The rest is declared by the language: as, two men, not two man.

Of Comparison.

The Comparatiue degree is knowen from the other, by then, following: as, gold is better then siluer, not good then siluer, nor best.

The superlatiue degree is declared by of, folowing: as, gold is best of metals.

When comparison is betwixt two, of, signifieth the Comparatiue degree: as, better of twaine.

Hetherto of proprieties belonging to Nownes: It followeth of ſuch as belong to verbs, as tence, or time.

Of Tence.

IF the time be parted fró the worde, as, I wil againſt ſuch a day, doe this: then make the marke of the time at the ſide of the perſon: as, at j.

The time of doing any thing, if it be paſt, and is ſignified by haue: let the Character for haue, be written.

If had, doe ſignifie it, make a pricke in the Character of haue, on the left hand.

If did, make the like pricke in the Character of doe, on the ſame ſide.

For were, write the Character of ware.

If the worde by reaſon of tence ende in ed, as, I loued, then make a prick in the Character of the word, on the lefte ſide. I loued

The time to come requireth a prick on the right ſide.

When woulde is to bee expreſſed, write the Character of will for it, and read it would: & for ſhould, make a prick on the right ſide of will.

The preſent tence wanteth a pricke, and ſo is knowen from other tences.

A worde of doing, that endeth in ing, as, eating, drinking &c. requireth two prickes directe vnder the bodie of the Character, as

Other times or tences, depēd vpon theſe, and are plainly diſcerned by the nature of the language.

A note of nombers, & propper names.

NOmbers are writen by the heades of the compounde Characters, with a ſtreight bodie hanging, and take increaſe by place, as Ciphers in Arithmetike:

Propper names, if they be ſignificant, are written by character: as, fielde, day, &c Otherwiſe the head of the character bearing the figure of a letter added alſo to the foote, and ſo ioyned in one figure, may ſerue for two letters: as, ab ac ad ae ba be &c. And ſo other two, till all the worde, or as much as is neceſſarie, ſhal be written: with a marke at the ſide of the firſt Character, to ſhewe that it is a name.

Hetherto concerning the solitary signification, with properties belonging to words. It followeth of the accõpanied signification.

THe accompanied signification is that which the Character expresseth by an addition to it.

This addition, is the heads of streight characters, each answering a letter in the alphabet.

These additions carrie the first letter of the accompanied signification, to declare what it is.

If the accompanied signification haue two wordes of like beginning as ledde, and latine, take two of the first letters made into one Character, as before in names, for differẽce.

If

If two, be like, (which is very rare) leaue the vouell, or the consonant, of the one, for difference, as in stretch, & straine, & take that which may make the difference.

The accompanied signification is of two kinds.

Either when the very worde is signified, or the sence only.

The very worde, when the precise word is to be signified.

Here sometimes falleth out a shortning of writing.

First, when and, or, neither, or such cõiunctions come betwixt two wordes that are of like significatiõ, or contraries: then, in stead of the Character of the second, place the addition answering the first letter of that word, to the side of the coniunction.

And if many ſynominaes, or contraries be vttered not coupled by any coniunction, make a pricke in ſtead of the cõiunction, and note thoſe ſynominaes, or contraries, with their markes, as before is ſaid, as part whole, lumpe, peece, thus:

The ſecond ſhortning is in repetitions.

If the repetition be of ſingle wordes, the figure of the number how oft it is repeated is to be added to the left ſide of the Character of the repeated word, as earth, earth, earth, heare the word of the Lord.

If it be of a ſentẽce, or whole part thereof, place a circle on the right ſide of the firſt repeated woordes Character thus:

thus: In perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils of the sea, write thus,

The accompanied signification in expresse word, is of two sorts. Either of like, & consenting significatió with the solitary: or of dissencing.

The consenting significatió requireth the marke on the left side.

The consenting significatió is of two kindes.

When the accompanied signification is a synonima to the solitary: or a kind of it.

Synonima, as anger, rage, fury.

A kinde as mettall, brasse, tinne, ledde.

Thus much of the Consenting signification: It followeth of the Dissenting.

THe dissenting signification is when the accompanied dissenteth from the solitary.

Here the addition is to be placed on the right side, as:

When it is a meere deniyng, it hath onely a dashe through the Character, whose worde it denieth, as, is, is not; good, not good.

Here place the shortning on the right side, as life, & death, nether good nor badde.

When such a contrary is first to be written, as is not conteyned in the table of Charactery wordes, then write it with the addition, and let the coniunction ction be accõpanied with the marke on the left side, as death and life.

Which marke is a pricke if it be the solitary significatiõ that is to be written, otherwise a marke of the synonima, therof

Hetherto cõcerning the accompanied signification, of the expresse word: It followeth of the sence.

THe sence onlie is to be taken with the character, whẽ besides that wee desire to bee swift, the very expresse worde is not necessarie. That is, when they doe but fill the speech, or otherwise are not of the substance of the matter: as, circumlocutions, and partitions.

Of the first sort is, when we leue out the speciall, and peculiar proprieties: as, high heauen, eternall God. Here leaue

out high, and eternall.

So when a phrase is to be taken with a worde: as, he tooke himselfe to his heeles, for he fled.

Also here may be lefte out the word of like signification, as, praise for cõmend, greeue, for molest, &c.

The other sort is, when the thing described, or diuided, is put for the description, or diuision: as, for creator of heauen and earth, God: the redeemer of mankinde, Christ.

So, for master, seruant, children, father, mother, olde and young: the whole familie.

At the side of the Character of the thing described, place the diuided
